UNO changes locks; may curb crime rate

By Joe Brennan

The installation of new locks on all campus buildings is an important step toward reducing the amount of theft from UNO, according to David Castilow, assistant director for campus security.

"It's been tons of years since the locks were changed," said Castilow. "It was long overdue."

Campus Security is "optimistic" that the new locks will help reduce what Castilow described is already one of the lowest crime rates for an institution the size of UNO.

Approximately $23,000 worth of university property and $13,000 worth of personal property was reported stolen during fiscal year 1980, Castilow said. Many universities report such totals every month, he added.

Property stolen

Much of the property turns up in local pawn shops and is identified by Omaha police through serial and inventory numbers, said Castilow. So far, 28 to 29 percent of stolen university property has been recovered.

In addition, one former university employee has been charged with theft of audio-visual equipment, he said.

Several years ago, $75,000 to $80,000 worth of property was reported missing in one 12-month period. Comparing those figures to 1980, Castilow said UNO is "not too bad off" but noted that problems of theft and vandalism are difficult to prevent. Security has a large area to cover (65 acres), he said, and the fact that "this is an intellectual community" compounds the problem.

Monitoring

"We're geared to keeping UNO (buildings) open," he said, because of night classes and other needs of students and faculty. Most buildings are open from 5:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. Thus, it is difficult for security to monitor every entrance, Castilow said.

Security currently employs 11 full-time officers, three sergeants, three dispatchers, and 10 parking lot specialists (two part-time).

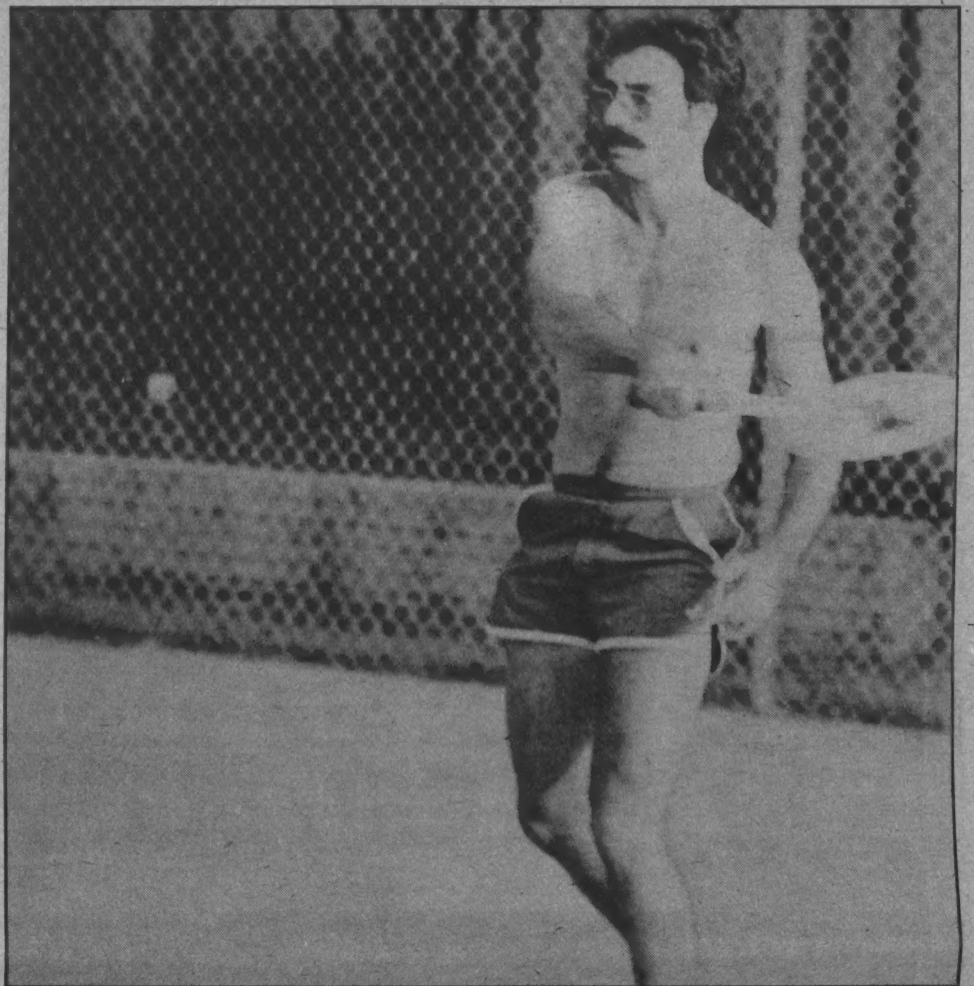

Officers lock buildings at 10 p.m. and check each door at least twice during the night, he said. Most exterior doors allow a person to leave but not to re-enter. So students or faculty working late, such as in the science laboratories of Allwine Hall, are still in the building even though it may be locked.

Halt

Security has the right to stop anyone on campus and ask for identification, said Castilow. If that person is suspected of petty larceny or a felony, security can legally detain him, with force if necessary, he added. Officers are equipped with mace to subdue unruly suspects, he said, and state law allows them to make citizen's arrests until local police arrive.

Castilow said campus buildings are also protected with electronic alarm systems.

Automatic teller provides quick cash

Quick cash... Marjorie Kuncie, marketing representative for Douglas County Bank and Trust, picks up a little extra money from that company's automatic teller in the Student Center. Located near the games room desk, the machine provides instant dollars for students who run a little short on cash.

By Lori Lonowski

Automatic banking has arrived at UNO this year. Douglas County Bank and Trust Company presented a proposal to Student Center administration for placing an Automatic Teller Machine (ATM) within the center.

The proposal was accepted because it was felt an additional convenience should be provided people on campus.

Al Karle, student center manager, said the ATM should also "alleviate some of the problems for check cashing at the games desk. We were running $3,000 worth of cashed checks. We would run out of money at 10 o'clock in the morning. We just couldn't keep up."

The bank began installing the machine during the latter part of August. According to the bank, the ATM will provide customers with deposit, funds transfer, and withdrawal capability anytime the Student Center is open.

The customer will use a plastic card similar to a credit card to make transactions. Each card is security coded. Only the card holder knows the security code and must enter it in the machine before making a transaction.

Marjorie Kuncie, a marketing representative for the bank, said one of the features of the ATM is it is the first machine to use five debit cards. They are: Instant Cash, Insta-Bank, Bank in a Box, Checkmate, and Bank in a Billfold.

"Unlike some of the less dependable machines involving currency, the ATM is a highly technical and specialized piece of equipment that offers no risk of losing money," said Kuncie. "Each transaction is security coded and in case of machine shutdown, the transaction can be traced immediately to the individual's bank..."

Kuncie said she will be demonstrating the machine for the next two to three weeks. Demonstrations will be offered in the Student Center from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

High refund requests net change in policy

UNO students will be able to get refunds of their Fund A fees beginning this week, according to Don Skeahan, director of the Student Center.

The refunds will be available throughout the month of September, said Skeahan, which is a change from previous semesters.

Fees used to be refunded later in the semester, but too many students were taking advantage of discount privileges for UNO activities and services, then applying for refunds at the end of the semester.

The unusually large number of students requesting refunds last spring forced the change in policy.

Last spring 2,415 students applied for the refunds, which meant a loss of $16,652 to the various campus student organizations.

Students will be able to apply for either whole or partial refunds of their $7.50 fees, choosing which organizations to support.

If students choose to apply for a refund, their UNO I.D. cards will have marks punched into them indicating which activities and services they can no longer receive discounts for.

Organizations currently receiving support from Fund A monies are the Student Programming Organization, United Minority Students, International Student Services, the Women's Resource Center, the Handicapped Students Organization, the Gateway and the Student Senate.

Changes in locks may reduce thefts

Handle problems slowing re-keying

This semester security has received several reports of thefts of motorcycles, bicycles, and mopeds. Castilow emphasized that persons should take care to lock their cars and secure adequate locks for cycles.

Efforts to inventory the university art collection have not produced any reports of stolen art, Castilow said.

Seasonal

He described vandalism as a "seasonal problem" at UNO. Most vandalism occurs in the spring, according to Castilow, after "a long, hard winter." He attributed the problem primarily to campus visitors, such as teenagers attending high school athletic events, and also to "fraternity pranks." While some of the vandalism may be caused by those

"horsing around", Castilow said he believes most of it is "intentional."

"Things get a little squirrely around here sometimes."

Last year a restroom at Caniglia Field was vandalized and doors, locks, and signs at the Fieldhouse were also damaged. "It's a nuisance and expensive to repair," he said.

By Mary Wolff-Langdon

The installation of new locks on exterior and interior doors, and "re-keying" of UNO has been slowed, according to Verne McClurg, director of campus security.

The project, begun Aug. 3, was stopped when installers Best Lock Co. of Minnesota ran out of door handle cores. Another problem, said McClurg, is that "some old cores are taking up to 30 minutes to remove."

About 2,500 locks are being changed in campus buildings.

McClurg said this is the first time he could recall UNO changing all the locks and starting a new key system. Plant Operations previously controlled the issuance of keys to university employees, a job which will now be handled by the security department.

"There was never any written policy under Plant Operations, let alone enforced," said McClurg.

The new policy requires employees to pay a $5 deposit for each key issued to them. Employees who resign or are terminated will have their paychecks withheld until keys are returned.

McClurg said the project should be completed by the end of this week.

Pre-marriage is among seminar topics

Second marriages, adolescence, and pre-marriage are some of the topics that will kick off the Fall 1981 series of the Life Adjustment seminars, according to a spokesman for the Life Adjustment Task Force.

The "Second Marriages" seminar, beginning Tuesday September 8 will be held at the Underwood Hills Presbyterian Church in Omaha. This seminar will deal with positive aspects of a second marriage, and examine some of the problems that could arise. Topics to be discussed during the seminar include the legal aspects of a second marriage, parenting and step-parenting, a child's eye-view of his new family, communication, and working on the relationship.

This five week seminar is designed for those who are in, or may be contemplating, a second marriage.

The seminar entitled "Adolescence" will also begin on Tuesday, Sept. 8 and meet at Faith Christian Church in Omaha. This is a four week series for parents of teens and pre-teens. The discussion will focus on conflicts between parent and teenage.

Also slated for Sept. 8, the "Pre-Marriage" will meet at Epworth United Methodist Church in Council Bluffs. A six week series, this seminar is designed for couples of any age who are planning to be married.

Beginning Thursday, Sept. 10, a six week series, "Adjusting to Divorce", will be held at the Jewish Community Center.

For additional information on these seminars, call 330-1144.

UNO neighbor stops parking growth

Low W parking expansion remains deadlocked

By Liz Robbins

A summer-long debate continues over the 49-stall expansion of Lot W on the west side of campus between UNO and neighboring residents.

Plant Management Director Neil Morgensen ordered the addition last spring. The work was halted after a city inspector pointed out that UNO failed to obtain a permit needed to pave asphalt near a residential area.

Morgensen said he didn't know a permit was needed until Frances Batt, president of a neighborhood group, Citizens Action Association (CAA), complained to the city.

Mrs. Batt, of 7001 Farnam St., complained that the parking lot was "fringing too near our homes."

"We feel they don't need the parking," she said. "I'm of the opinion that the reason they're carving the area up and desecrating it, really, is because they want to get more parking for the Alumni House," she said.

Morgensen argued that the new parking places are slated for student use.

CAA filed suit in Douglas County District Court in early July asking for a restraining order to prevent any further addition to Lot W.

The neighborhood group complained that the expansion of the UNO lot would create a "traffic and safety hazard to the neighborhood."

The suit also alleged the university failed to follow city zoning codes, and that the addition to Lot W would worsen drainage problems in the area.

Attorney Douglas F. Duchek, representing the Board of Regents, argued that the regents' right of eminent domain does not bind them to local zoning codes.

District Court Judge James Buckley dismissed the petition, and said any suit against the university would have to be brought by an individual property owner, not by the association itself.

As a result, Arthur Montmorency, of 310 S. 67th St., whose property adjoins Lot W, requested a restraining order on further construction of the parking lot.

Montmorency is seeking to stop UNO's plan to add parking stalls because "the water flow creates a threat to the surroundings real estate."

After the July 23 hearing on Montmorency's suit, Buckley granted a continuance to attorneys for regents.

Duchek said he asked for a continuance after testimony by civil engineer Robert Dreessen indicated the alleged drainage problem may be related to the size of a storm sewer pipe.

Dreessen, city engineer for Papillion and LaVista, said there is a problem when a 36-inch storm sewer pipe servicing Lot W meets a 27-inch pipe near 67th Street.

"The university is cognizant of the problem," said Duchek. "We don't want to complicate things. We want time to evaluate the sewer system in the area and study the situation."

Attorney Lawrence Batt, who represents Montmorency, said the temporary restraining order would remain in effect until a hearing on Oct. 20.

Metro Area Carpool, security match students with rides

You're interested in carpooling but the thought of doing legwork to find others with similar class and work schedules plus coordinating a plan of attack isn't too appealing. Right?

This year UNO students needing rides to school will be matched with a driver in their area by a computer.

Metro Area Carpool (MAC) and Campus Security are working together to provide information on carpooling, ride-sharing and bus transportation.

In the past, it was the responsibility of individuals to find others with similar schedules, said Verne McClurg, director of security.

Student Government also had its hands in the carpool juggling act. It attempted to coordinate times for students interested in carpooling. Student Government's efforts, however, didn't increase carpooling, said McClurg.

"Four or five years ago when it (carpooling) started, we'd have eight, 10 or 11 carpools a semester," he said. Last year, McClurg added, was the biggest year in UNO carpool history — 25 stickers issued each semester.

"We had the idea that there had to be a better method of matching up people," he said.

The better method came via a (continued on page 7)

Weber is right: UNO needs high-rises

The address by Chancellor Del Weber at the UNO Fall Convocation on Aug. 23 was long awaited and long overdue.

A UNO administrator finally has taken a public stand on the issue of UNO parking and, thankfully, he is standing on the side of the students and faculty. Both have complained long and loud about the parking at this university.

Weber told those at the convocation that UNO needs a high-rise parking facility, two of them in fact, and called the present parking situation "critical."

The Gateway agrees with Chancellor Weber.

In fact, this paper both has favored and urged such construction for the past several years. We feel that the recent parking situation at UNO has been outrageous, and now, due to increasing enrollment, it is bordering on horrendous.

We feel that the present assumption that students will rotate parking (as one student leaves his/her classes and parking stall, another with later classes will fill the space) is merely wishful thinking on the part of campus security and does not work in the real world.

Most students sign up for a.m. classes out of convenience or necessity, most instructors want to teach a.m. classes out of convenience or necessity most classes are scheduled for the a.m. out of convenience or necessity; hence, most people are on campus in the a.m. hours, causing a glut of cars with no space to accommodate them.

If this system DID work, we would not require the "forced" busing from Ak-Sar-Ben. "Forced" because most students would much rather park on campus but can't.

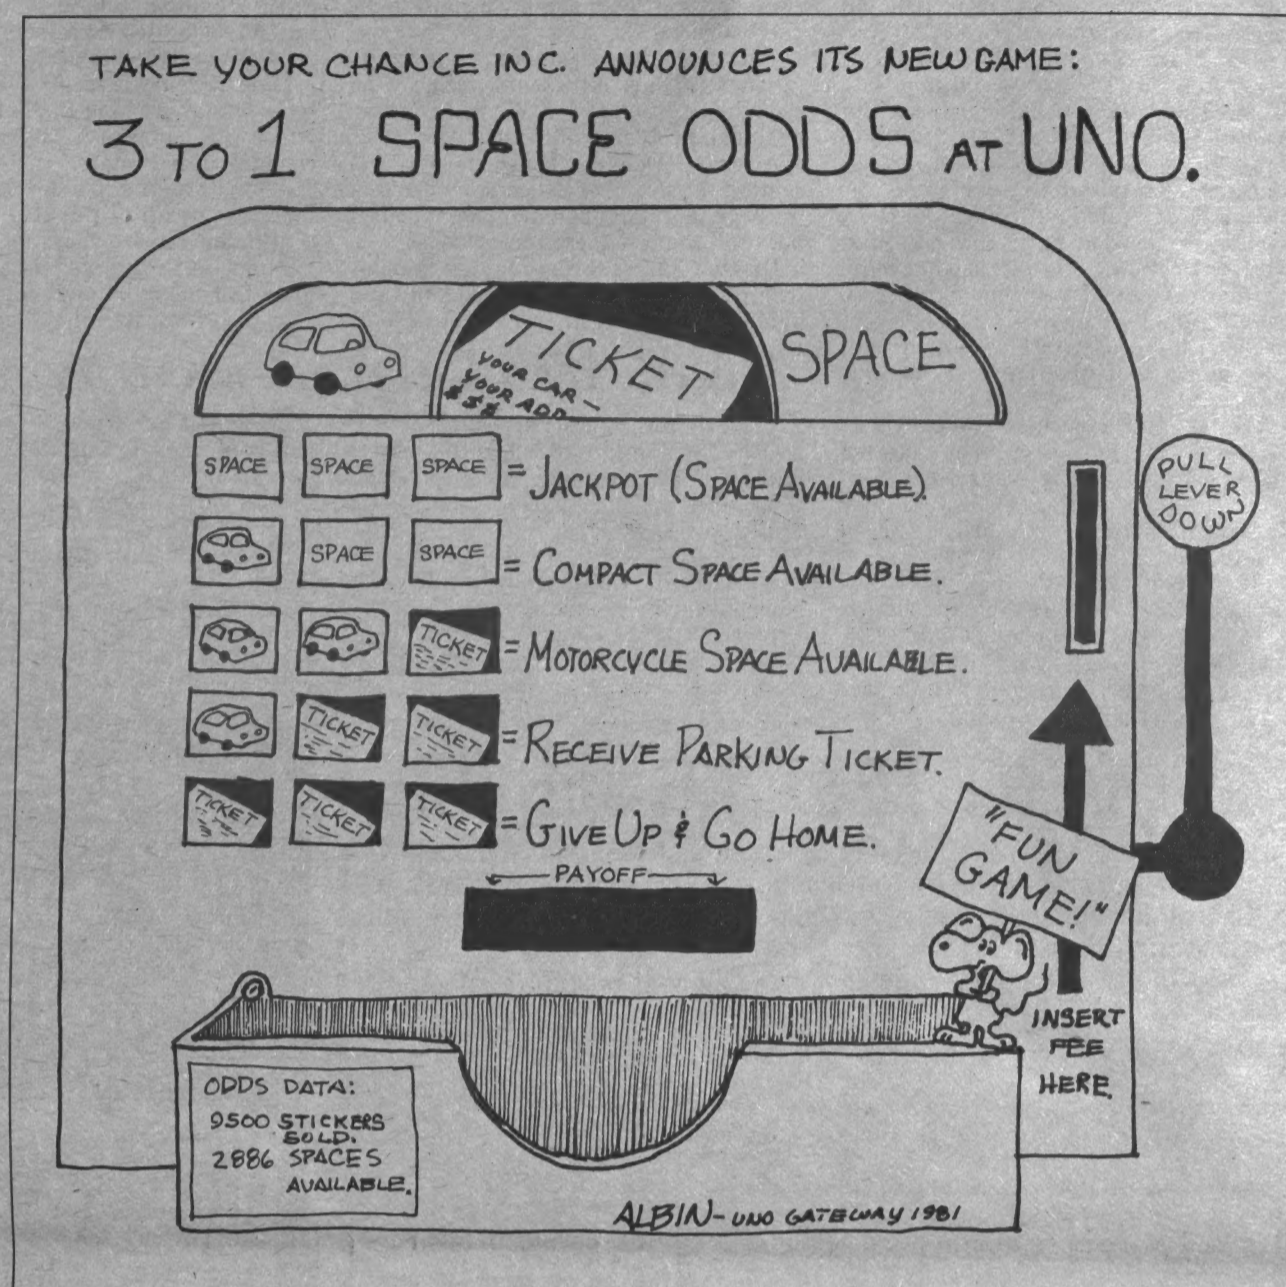

This rotation system pipe dream is merely a method of creating revenue by selling more parking stickers than can be used, as is evidenced by the number of cars with stickers on their windows parked on side streets or in neighboring parks.

Obviously, UNO needs more on-campus parking. But where can it be built?

According to Chancellor Weber, we are "locked in on three sides — east, north and south." That leaves us with only one way to go — west.

Unfortunately, but understandably, any expansion to the west will be vehemently opposed by residents living on that edge of the university. They say they are tired of university encroachment which turns their neighborhood into a schoolyard.

Also, students do not want to walk the long distances (especially in the winter months) from west side of campus to their classes, most of which are located in the middle or on the east side of campus. But this is exactly what westward expansion would force them to do.

So what do we do for parking?

We again suggest using the ground space we already have in a more efficient manner; e.e., high-rise parking facilities.

But this terribly simple answer seems to trouble some people, mainly those who feel they will be looked upon to fund such a project, and an Aug. 27 Omaha World-Herald story will probably give them ammunition to fight with.

The story quotes officials at other Midwestern universities who say that parking garages are monetarily impractical and do not solve parking problems.

The Gateway does not suggest that all of UNO's parking problems will be solved by one, or even two, high-rise structures.

We do believe, however, that they would go a long way towards helping to solve our parking dilemma, and if enrollment continues to increase, the garages may be just enough to keep things just as bad as they are instead of letting them get worse.

If enrollment levels off or decreases, so much the better; it will have made it easier to attend this school, will ease conflict between UNO and its western neighbors, and would lessen the damage being done to city parks, all worthwhile goals.

In response to the article's reports that the garages are too expensive for legislators to support, we think that no one entity or group of people will be necessarily forced to pay for the structure(s).

Certainly, part of the money should be funded by the state, but both parking permit buyers and UNO students in general should help pay the cost of the structure, without coming close to realizing the figures presented in the World-Herald story.

The article points out a study by the Leo A.

Daly Co. reports that a three or four-story parking garage on the east side of campus would cost approximately $3.6 million.

This cost, if paid for by parking permit fees only, would raise the price of stickers from $12 to $51.35 per year. This, of course, would be intolerable. It is also unnecessary.

Part of the cost could surely be raised by increasing student fees generally.

But why should all students be forced to pay for a building that only some will use you ask?

For the same reason that all students were forced to pay higher fees to support the construction of the HPER Building. It did not bother legislators, regents or administrators that only a small percentage of UNO students and faculty would use that structure, or even be around to use it once it was completed.

Everyone will have the same opportunity, if not a better one to use the new parking facility just as everyone has the opportunity to use the HPER facilities (and more of an opportunity to use them than they have of using the Peter Kiewit Conference Center located somewhere near Council Bluffs).

Certainly some students will complain about the increase, but they probably also complain about the parking. By spreading the cost between legislators and the general student population, student parking sticker fees would not have to be raised nearly as high as the amount suggested by the Leo A. Daly Co. report.

They may have to be raised, but they might be raised only for those permits allowing parking in the facility, though a general increase would spread the cost out a little more and give all students an opportunity to try to park in the garage.

Therefore, based upon the foregoing suggestions, the Gateway considers the construction of high-rise parking facilities to be not only feasible and advantageous, but also necessary and, at this point, mandatory.

Aksarben Shuttlebus Change

The loading/unloading area for the Aksarben Shuttlebuses has been changed from inside the parking lot to the Valet entrance just north of the 63rd and Shirley entrance. This will keep cars and buses separated and reduce wear and tear on the parking lot surface.

"Danglers — Beware!"

The transferable parking permit is to be attached to the inside rear-view mirror. Permits lying on the dash, propped-up against the inside windshield and hanging from the glove compartment box will result in a violation.

This procedure may appear to be "picky" to say the least. However, there are several reasons why: (1) The Security Officers need to see the permit when you enter campus or various lots; (2) the Security Officers visually check approximately 6,000 cars a day, therefore, to look for your permit within the depths of your vehicle reduces their efficiency, leads to calls of unauthorized vehicles, and raises a question of whether or not the vehicle does have a permit.

Please — hang your permits from the inside rear-view mirror while you are parked on campus.

Carpooling

Information sheets to sign up for Carpooling or Ridesharing are available at the Student Government Office, Telecommunications, and Campus Security Office. Filling out a simple form can save you time in finding others with your same schedule.

HOW YOU CAN BE COACH!

Now, you can be more than a spectator. Now, you can actually coach the Phillies, the Royals, or any of over 200 teams from the present or the past.

At "THE BALL PARK" you will find the players on these teams reproduced to perform, in every way, exactly as they did in the majors. As manager, you will now choose starting lineups, pitching rotations, and make every other conceivable coaching decision, choices never before available in any other manufactured baseball game.

You will also choose from 30 major league parks to play in Parks from the past and the present are available. Each park plays differently, exactly as it did in real life.

You will see tantalizing matchups of pitchers and batter. How would Bob Gibson do pitching to Babe Ruth? How would Lefty Grove do against George Brett? Could you coach the famous "Gas House Gang" to victory over the awesome 1927 Yankees?
Find out at "THE BALL PARK."

Ball Park baseball is not ruled by luck — much depends on you as coach. Easy to learn and great fun to play on either a beginners or advanced level.

Cast members are individually innovative

'Godspell' production is an 'uplifting experience'

The Gospel of St. Matthew according to the cast of "Godspell" at the Center Stage is the liveliest version of Scripture one is ever likely to experience.

From the story of the prodigal son to a light-hearted rendition of the Last Supper, this cast of colorful eccentrics sang, danced and prayed their way into the hearts of the opening night audience.

Artistic Director Bill Davis has assembled a talented group of 10 performers who seem to comprise every size, shape, color and creed known to man.

Davis displays a brilliant touch in his orchestration of the production's non-stop movement. The company flows from scene to scene not as individuals but as a unit. The constant interplay among the actors and the precision-like timing of the action make the production fascinating to watch.

Props appear from out of thin air. Actors leap from level to level on the colorful set with the grace of acrobats.

Throughout the show characters saunter into the theater, chatting or singing to members of the unsuspecting audience. Even in the dark one could spot a conservative-looking gentleman blush as the lovely Rita E. Milos used his lap for a brief rest during her steamy version of "Turn Back, O Man."

Davis's deft direction, combined with a sky-high energy level, account for solid performances by the entire cast. Richard Grube plays the role of Jesus with beatific ease. His soft voice works well, particularly his use of an anguished falsetto in the Convincing performances . . . Richard Grube, who plays Jesus in the Center Stage production of "Godspell," talks with Paul Meyers. Meyers plays both John the Baptist and Judas.

Garden of Gethsemane.

Paul Meyers as John the Baptist and Judas has the strongest presence on stage. His extensive range as an actor is evident as he moves from the early whimsical scenes to the emotional finale with great dexterity.

The remainder of the cast, known as the Company, is a delight. Innovations by each member make for eight unique characters. From the silky vocal chords of Gloria Jensen and Stacie Lamb, to the shameless mugging of the Theresa Ann Stasney and John Patrick Morrissey, the audience is treated to one excellent scene after another.

The surreal lighting and sound effects of John Abt and Monte Michaelson made for an eerie and powerful climax to the show, the Crucifixion of Christ on Mount Calvary.

"Godspell," written by John-Michael Tebelak and Stephan Schwartz, is the first offering of the Center Stage's second season. For an uplifting experience and a lot of toe-tapping fun, see it.

The play runs thru Sept. 20, with shows on Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 2 p.m.

Hoover works to support students and UNO

By Matt Smolsky

Advocating the university and helping students. Richard Hoover, vice chancellor for Educational and Student Services, sees both tasks as major functions of his job.

Part of his role, he said, is assisting students get the fullest education possible.

Making sure UNO is properly presented to the business and general Nebraska and Omaha communities is also important, he said. This advocacy role belongs to all agencies under his direction, he said.

"The students have an opportunity to give input . . . (concerning) the direction and decisions that guide this campus," Hoover said.

Those agencies include United Minorities Students, the Women's Resource Center, and the Student Programming Organization, said Hoover.

Organizations such as these give students an opportunity to practice leadership skills, he said.

"UNO is a microcosm of society in general," said Hoover.

Leadership experience makes activity in student services an extension of the classroom, he said. And the variety of people at UNO, he added, makes the job of student organizations more difficult.

Hoover said he enjoys interacting with the students he's helping.

He and Chancellor Del Weber meet with a group of 35 students for dinner nearly every month of the academic year to discuss pertinent issues.

Last year, representatives of student government, band, and various other organizations on campus were invited to express ideas, he said.

"It gives me an exposure to the students I wouldn't have," said Hoover.

Hoover came to UNO from the University of Missouri — Kansas City (UMKC) one week after the start of the fall semester last year.

"I like it," he said. "I like UNO a great deal."

Arriving on campus during the second week of classes put him behind schedule. "It was always an effort to catch up," he said. Now he's "much more relaxed, much more at ease."

While at UMKC Hoover served mainly as the assistant vice-chancellor in the division of student services for 10 years. He said he has been working in the student services field for 16 years.

Hoover said he was also an assistant professor of higher education administration at UMKC.

"I'm still entertaining ideas of teaching here at UNO," he said.

For relaxation, Hoover said he likes to play golf, watch sports and play intramural basketball. He said he also has "a full-blown workshop."

He said he enjoys the outdoors as well. "There's a need for us to maintain our natural resources."

Rogers sparkles in Mavs' final grid tuneup

By Mark Martens

UNO's top two offensive units piled up 327 yards rushing out of the new wishbone offense in the final scrimmage before Saturday's opener against Northeast Missouri State at Caniglia Field.

The potent ground game was highlighted by senior halfback Tim Rogers, the Mavs' leading rusher last season. Rogers compiled 94 yards on just 4 carries, including bursts of 62 and 22 yards. Rogers also scored the first touchdown of the night on a rollout from three yards away.

But head coach Sandy Buda doesn't think the Mavs are ready to play a game just yet.

"We're not ready," he said. "We scheduled the scrimmage a day early (Friday) so that we would have more time to prepare for Northeast, and we'll need the extra time. We need a lot of improvement on both sides of the football yet."

Pleased with QBs

Buda was, however, pleased with the way the quarterbacks performed.

"Out quarterbacks (Randy Naran and Mark McManigal) did a good job of executing the offense," Buda said. McManigal scampered for 58 yards on seven carries and Naran picked up 46 yards on five tries.

The top units, which averaged 8.4 yards a carry rushing and scored four touchdowns, had runs of four yards by Larry Barnett, two yards by Barry Leif, and 20 yards by freshman Terry Evans to round out the scoring.

Buda had particular praise for young quarterbacks Dan McKee, Darryl Peitzmeier and Mark Sanchez. They "showed tremendous poise under fire."

But he was upset with the attitude of his defense during the scrimmage.

Defense disappointing

"The defense wasn't intense enough, which was disappointing, since they had shown good intensity earlier this year," he said.

He added that the areas needing the most improvement are the pass rush, the pass defense, and the passing game.

The Mavs will be working the bugs out the rest of this week.

On the bright side of the scrimmage, there were no major injuries reported to players on the first and second teams and, according to Buda, the scout teams did a good job of simulating Northeast Missouri's offense and defense.

The only injury resulting from the scrimmage was a knee injury to Bruce Ferrell, a redshirt transfer.

Two other Mavs who didn't play were freshman Jay Becklun, who had strep throat, and Terry Schnegelberger, who had an infected elbow.

Scoring:

Rogers 3 run (Pettit kick).
Barnett 4 run (Pate kick).
Leif 2 run (Pettit kick).
Evans 20 run (Pate kick).
Finley 9 run (Voleinik kick).
Evans 2 run (kick failed).

UND nips Mavs in NCC poll

North Dakota, which last won the North Central Conference football title in 1979, edged UNO as the favorite to win the 1981 crown in a preseason poll of sportswriters and broadcaster.

The Fighting Sioux polled 16 first-place votes and tallied 246 points to beat out the Mavs, who collected 111½ first-place votes and 242½ points.

North Dakota State was third with 218 points, defending league champ Northern Colorado was fourth with 1/2 and South Dakota finished fifth with 172. Augustana and Morningside rounded out the poll, collecting 80 and 48 points, respectively.

Points were awarded on a basis of eight for first, seven for second, and so on.

Northern Colorado rolled up a 6-1 conference record in winning the title last season while North Dakota State, North Dakota and UNO all tied for second with 5-2 marks.

Cross country preview

Depth to aid Mavs in run for NCC title

By Ernie May

Cross country fans hoping to catch a glimpse of the Mav squad will have to do some traveling this year.

Because of lack of opponents and a dispute with the Omaha Parks and Recreation Department, the Mavs are left without a course or a home opponent.

According to track coach Don Patton, the parks department will not let UNO use Elmwood, or any other park in the city.

"We've been running in Elmwood for 30 years and now the park commission says we can't," said Patton. "They've never had a problem with our kids, and we make it a point to stay out of the golfers' way."

Courtesy needed

"It's just a matter of giving us the courtesy," he said. "The city uses Caniglia Field on Sundays for flag football, and the sand pits in the stadium to train firemen. I think it is important for people to see UNO is here."

Patton also said, it's becoming difficult to get teams in the state to run against. "It's easy to get someone if they think they can beat you," he said. "We've offered everything (trophies and medals) but paying the teams' way and we won't do that."

One reason it is so difficult to find opponents, said Patton, is because of the sport and the state itself.

"Cross country has never been a spectator sport," he said. "It's hard for people to fathom driving 100 miles to run for 30 minutes and then come home."

Popularity growing

"Cross country is popular in other states," said Patton, "but Nebraska has one large activity, Big Red football. We are a football-dominated state. It's hard for people to pay attention to lesser sports. In other states it's not that way."

Patton added the popularity of running is growing. "Maybe in 50 years it will be more visible."

Despite all the problems Patton has had lining up opponents, he said this year may be the year UNO wins the North Central Conference title, its first since 1976.

"We've had trouble in the past few years in track because our distance runners were young and inexperienced, but now we have the people."

Hall among best

"A distance runner is like wine," said Patton, "he develops with age. The body is stronger for older kids and that makes them better distance runners. I'd like to have all fifth-year runners who will be around for four more years."

Topping the list of returning runners is Jim Hall, the only senior on the squad.

"We redshirted Jim last year," said Patton, "and may have cost him a trip to the nationals. But right now he just may be one of the top men in the country."

Backing up Hall will be Jim Labenz, who finished 11th in the AAU age group nationals this summer; Jerry Lorkavic, a sophomore from Paul VI; Chris Stokes, a red-shirt freshman who has been running neck-in-neck with Hall; and junior Mike Debolt.

2 runners injured

Patton is also hoping two more of his top runners, Mike Jones and Terry Ostrander, will recover from injuries in time for the start of the season, Sept. 12 at Northwest Missouri.

"Mike had a fine spring," said Patton. "He was running a 4:13 mile before he stepped on a nail three weeks ago. He's been nursing himself since then."

Patton said Ostrander, who had been running right up with Hall most of this fall, "is coming along" after suffering from a viral infection this summer.

He said the addition of "the best group of freshmen we've ever had" will give the Mavs the depth they need to reclaim the NCC crown.

Among the rookies joining the squad are Kelley Crawford of Harlan, Iowa, John Blatter, a transfer from Hutchinson, Kan., junior college, Scott Eary, a state champ from Fremont, Neb., and Tony Jackson, who finished eighth in the state while at Bellevue East last season.

Walk-on add depth

Also joining the Mavs are walk-ons Vincent Baldwin, just out of the Navy; Bob Walsh, a member of Omaha Burke's state championship teams the past two years; Tom Hamlin, a half-miler from Omaha North; and Jim Wilson, from Fremont.

"We definitely have the quality people," said Patton.

"We just need to get him in some meets."

Patton said one way to make sure all his runners see action is to split up the team. "Some meets will let us run all 16 runners, others only seven. We have to give these younger people some competition."

"We can't let them sit around and wait. It's very difficult to keep them if they run 10-12 miles a day in training and never run in meets."

According to Patton, the key to success for the Mavs is believing in themselves. "Midway through the season last year the kids saw they could beat the older guys and they've been coming on strong since."

ISU key meet

Patton said UNO's meet at Iowa State Sept. 19, "will tell us a lot. A lot of teams don't want to run against ISU because of the foreigners on the team" he said, "but the competition is good for us. It makes us a better team and helps us attract better runners."

"We're the only school in Nebraska giving runners an opportunity to compete on a higher level, against people like Kansas State and ISU. We're getting a lot of kids because they realize they can go to the Division II nationals, place there and move on to the Division I meet."

"We haven't lost too many recruits," said Patton, "and each year it perpetuates itself. It keeps growing and makes us better and better."

CLIP AND SAVE

Bright future ahead for UNO speedster Evans.

By Leo Biga

Football fans are wise to express skepticism when presented with much-heralded freshman prospects who are invariably described as "blue-chippers."

Often, "can't miss" players fail to live up to inflated expectations and are never heard from again.

UNO Mavericks fans have an opportunity this fall to see one prospect of perhaps a slightly different stripe.

Terry Evans, at present the No. 3 left half-back for the Mavs, comes to UNO after a spectacular senior season at Omaha Central where he broke the Metro Conference's single-season rushing record, as well as school records of former Chicago Bears and Kansas great Gale Sayers.

Rushing leader

Evans has been preparing with his teammates for the Sept. 5 opener with Northeast Missouri State at Caniglia Field.

The 5-9, 180-pound Evans has some dazzling statistics.

In 1980, he led all Nebraska Class A running backs by rushing for 1,587 yards, averaging nine yards per carry, and scoring 24 touchdowns. Those figures helped Central enjoy one of its best seasons in recent years, 6-4 and a berth in the state playoffs.

Evans compiled the statistics despite seeing double-duty as a starter in Central's defensive backfield.

His offensive performance earned him a first team all-state selection.

Scholarship offers

According to Central coach Bill Reed, the 18-year-old Evans was offered scholarships by seven or eight major colleges, including Nebraska and Iowa State, and by 15 to 20 smaller colleges.

In addition to his football prowess, Evans broke several state and national powerlifting records at Central, and runs a consistent 4.6 to 4.55 40-yard dash.

Evans

UNO head coach Sandy Buda said Evans "could be one of the best backs . . . ever recruited" by the Mavs.

Offensive backfield coach Chuch Osberg agrees: "He's got the speed to break plays, that gives him the ability to roll up a lot of yards. He's a break-away threat."

Evans was not, however, always at the top in athletics. Reed said Evans saw "small, slow . . . weak" as a sophomore and didn't start until his junior year. Reed credited Evans' weightlifting with increasing his (Evans) strength and speed.

Bass helps

"His improvement came at a moderate pace, step by step," said Reed. Evans was also helped, said Reed, by Central assistant coach Bobby Bass, a former standout running back for UNO and Omaha Benson.

"Bobby and Terry share similar running styles and I think Terry picked up a lot from Bobby," Reed said.

Evans agreed with Reed's assessment of his slow start in high school. When a junior, Evans said he rarely carried the ball, although he gained about 600 yards. "I was mostly a blocking back then," said Evans. Of his outstanding senior season, he said, "I was happy to know that I could run like I could. I didn't know I could do that."

Evans acknowledges the "stiff competition" among UNO running backs this year. He said his playing time in the Mavs' wishbone offense this fall "depends on how the situation is. If the backs ahead of me are doing the job . . . then it's all right" if he doesn't start.

Likes wishbone

"I like the wishbone," he added, "it's a quick, off-the-ball offense."

Osberg said the wishbone matches Evans' talents. "The wishbone requires that you be a good blocker," said Osberg, and although Evans is rather small, "his strength more than makes up for his size."

Evans' speed is undeniable, but he has had few opportunities to display it in UNO scrimmages this fall. Facing tough competition from freshman Bill Gillman, who is ahead of Evans at left halfback, Evans has turned in a less-than-spectacular performance.

In one scrimmage, he carried the ball only twice for minus seven yards. Osberg said Evans' "turn will come" and that "I'm not the least bit down on him at all."

Osberg said Evans has been working hard in practice and, despite his unimpressive statistics, he remains convinced of the runner's ability.

No regrets

While most recognize Evans' potential on the football field, there is some question as to his academic performance.

"I think he has something to prove academically also," said Reed. "I hope he works hard at his degree, that's what I'm really hoping for."

Evans' scholastic performance at Central played a part in his decision to attend UNO, which offered him an athletic scholarship.

"Terry did not have what I would call a real, real great year (academically) at Central as a senior," Reed said. "He was not able to get at the level needed for a major college (offer of full scholarship)," he added.

Evans said he has no regrets about attending UNO and is dedicated to concentrating on his education. "I just concentrate on football until 6 p.m. Studies are number one, football is close second."

Another reason he decided to attend UNO was because of the attention paid him by the Maverick coaching staff, which began recruiting him before the first game of his senior year. "Plus, I knew some players up here. I knew I could get it on with them."

UNO to boost stadium capacity

Increased interest in UNO football and the success of this year's season ticket drive has prompted the addition to 1,500 permanent seats to Al Caniglia Field this fall.

The metal bleacher-type seats, purchased through private donations, will be installed for the Sept. 19 game against Morningside, according to Athletic Director Don Leahy.

"With attendance consistently over our capacity and the increased season ticket support, I think it's time we had additional seating available for fans who otherwise would have to stand to watch the game" said Leahy.

The seats, which will be located in the north end zone, boosts the stadium's capacity to 9,500.

In the past UNO has borrowed bleachers from Rosenblatt Stadium to add to the seating capacity for football games.

The Mavs have averaged 7,632 people per game since installing the east stands, but the past three seasons have averaged 9,069 for 16 contests, including an all-time high of 12,000 on Sept. 8, 1979 against Northern Colorado.

THE HIGH COST OF A COLLEGE EDUCATION JUST WENT DOWN A FEW DEGREES.

ANNOUNCING THREE NEW ARMY NATIONAL GUARD PROGRAMS THAT CAN HELP YOU PAY FOR COLLEGE.

If you're like many college students, the closer you get to your degree, the deeper you get into debt. But, you don't have to get in over your head. Not when you join the Army National Guard.

Because now, the Guard has three new programs to help you pay for college: the College Loan Repayment Program; the Educational Assistance Program, and the Enlistment Bonus Program. And you don't have to wait for graduation to take advantage of them. You could join the Guard right now.

You see, the Army National Guard is part-time. After your initial training, it takes just two days a month and two weeks of annual training a year to serve. So there's plenty of time left for your studies. And you get paid for every hour you put into the Guard, so you'll have extra cash for books, lab fees, and all those other little expenses that come up.

Of course, there's more to the Guard than money. It's a chance to do something good for your country, as well as for people right in your own community. The Guard can give you more options in your life—and more control over your financial future.

If that sounds like where you want to be, see your financial aid officer, contact your local Army National Guard recruiter, or use the toll-free number below for complete details on how the Guard can help you pay for college. And help in a lot of other ways, too. But hurry! These special programs for college students are available for a limited time only.
